They may believe they have the power, but deem it unwise to exercise it, and with that a Court has nothing to do. It was generally thought that Congress had power to prohibit slavery in 1850; but that was unsatisfactory. One section of the Union protested unanimously. It was not doubted that Congress had power to protect slavery, but that was quite as nnestisfactory to the other section of the Union. Let us agree, the?, to let the whole subject alone, remitting it to the Territories and to the Courts. Both sections of the Union could meet on this ground in harmony and peace. The people of the Terral ries could legislate on the subject at their discretion, and the Courts would nullify any of their illegal or unconstitutional acts. The same reasons that have existed for non-intervention heretofore exist now in all their force. Congress cannot now pass any act respecting slavery in the Territories; what one llouse would no act can pass hereafter favoring one side that would not be intolerably odious to the other. THE CROPS .- Generally the intelligence i regard to the crops is very encouraging The long drouth which threatened a famine in the Northwest has been broken by copious rains. "The fields are green, the fruit trees are in bloom, already vendure has com menced luxuriant growth, and all usture looks refreshed and invigorated." The Milwaukee News says: "If the present weather continues but a short time longer no fears need be entertained that the harvest which is to follow will far exceed in bounty years." The St. Paul Minn. ) Pioneer informed by a gentleman who less traveled over large portions of Minnesots, that all sorts of crops are in a better condition than ever before known at this a ason of the year, and more than double the amount of ground is under cultivation than last year. In Kansas the prospect is not so favorable the drouth continues, and its had effect, are very severely felt. The prospect is good in Iowa. The rye harvest will be very large. The Michigan papers speak of the wheat crop as looking remarkally well Grain and fruit promise well in Penusylva mia. The Plateburg Journal thinks the fruit will be unprecedented. The wheat cropnever looked better throughout the State. and is advaucing finely.
